

Untitled by Liam Robinson (etching on paper)

Burnham Beeches is a mysterious forest, the distinctive and eerie beech pollards in which have always beckoned the adventurous explorer. It certainly had this effect on artist Liam Robinson, who says; "By venturing deeper into woodland, you find areas of different habitat. Here, with etching and aquatint I wanted to show differing areas of shade."